thrive

Table Talk - Core Value #5

Admonishing Faithfully

Encourage & admonish each other faithfully towards maturity.

-Who is the best encourager in your life?
-What is your typical response when someone tells you something that is true, but you might not want to hear?
-Read Proverbs 27:6,17. Who was the last person who "sharpened" you through a loving, hard conversation?
-Discuss this statement: If the motivation is love, it's a "greater sin" to say nothing to another person than to say what they are doing is wrong.
-What are some excuses we hide behind instead of lovingly admonishing one another?
-What can we do to help each other admonish one another in love?

WHO ARE SOME PEOPLE YOU FEEL SAFE HAVING HARD CONVERSATIONS WITH IN YOUR LIFE?

HOW DOES ACCOUNTABILITY HELP US AS CHRIST FOLLOWERS?

WHAT IS SOMETHING THAT YOU NEED SOMEONE TO HOLD YOU ACCOUNTABLE FOR? WHO HAS A STRONG ENOUGH RELATIONSHIP WITH YOU TO WALK ALONGSIDE YOU?

Encourage Others

We have talked about how we can encourage our friends even when they make a mistake. This week, we read a book in our classes called "The Friend Who Forgives". In this book, the friend is Jesus. He can make forgiveness look so easy, but for us, it can be hard. However, we can learn so many important lessons from him and his encounters. Dig a little deeper with your kiddos. Ask them the following questions to get them thinking about mistakes they've made, friends that have made mistakes, and the grace that can be given to learn from those mistakes.

a. Tell about a time when you said something before you really thought about it. Did you say something out of anger or jealousy? Would you have said it if you thought harder about it or taken the time to pray about it?

b. Have you ever let a friend down? Has a friend ever let you down? Did you talk about it or did you just stay mad? What has Jesus taught us about friends that make mistakes?

thrive

Table Talk - Core Value #5

Admonishing Faithfully

Encourage & admonish each other faithfully towards maturity.

-Who is the best encourager in your life?
-What is your typical response when someone tells you something that is true, but you might not want to hear?
-Read Proverbs 27:6,17. Who was the last person who "sharpened" you through a loving, hard conversation?
-Discuss this statement: If the motivation is love, it's a "greater sin" to say nothing to another person than to say what they are doing is wrong.
-What are some excuses we hide behind instead of lovingly admonishing one another?
-What can we do to help each other admonish one another in love?

WHO ARE SOME PEOPLE YOU FEEL SAFE HAVING HARD CONVERSATIONS WITH IN YOUR LIFE?

HOW DOES ACCOUNTABILITY HELP US AS CHRIST FOLLOWERS?

WHAT IS SOMETHING THAT YOU NEED SOMEONE TO HOLD YOU ACCOUNTABLE FOR? WHO HAS A STRONG ENOUGH RELATIONSHIP WITH YOU TO WALK ALONGSIDE YOU?

Encourage Others

We have talked about how we can encourage our friends even when they make a mistake. This week, we read a book in our classes called "The Friend Who Forgives". In this book, the friend is Jesus. He can make forgiveness look so easy, but for us, it can be hard. However, we can learn so many important lessons from him and his encounters. Dig a little deeper with your kiddos. Ask them the following questions to get them thinking about mistakes they've made, friends that have made mistakes, and the grace that can be given to learn from those mistakes.

a. Tell about a time when you said something before you really thought about it. Did you say something out of anger or jealousy? Would you have said it if you thought harder about it or taken the time to pray about it?

b. Have you ever let a friend down? Has a friend ever let you down? Did you talk about it or did you just stay mad? What has Jesus taught us about friends that make mistakes?